STAMPEDE TO SALMON RIVER

Ever since a week ago Tuesday an enormous stampede from the vicinity of Elk creek to Salmon river has been taking place In the early part of June last a prospector went down upon this river and has, apparently, struck it big from the fact that he last week, returned for some of his friends at Elk creek Of course he and his friends were followed by a large crowd of eager gold hunters, and Reynolds City is said to be now almost deserted there being only two or three houses there that are doing any business to speak of The miners at Bear City prove themselves a little less excitable and hold on to their old diggings. It is not certainly known where the new discoveries are, whether upon the north or south forks of Salmon river

A BIG CLEAN UP

On Friday and Saturday Campbell & Chinaman cleaned up from their claim at Montana Bar, Diamond City one hundred and seventy thousand dollars. They had been running two flumes, and sixty men for over a week at the time this enormous amount was taken out, and carried away in seven large pans

SPECIMEN BRICKS

We were recently shown a couple of small bricks, weighing respectively two and three ounces ... the product of Trout Creek quartz. The first was obtained from the Home Ticket lead by an imperfect arastra process and the latter was taken by the same method, from half a ton of rock from the Bigler lode This latter lead is now being energetically worked, and pays, on an average ninety-eight dollars to the ton

AGRICULTURAL MATTERS

Haying is nearly over in this vicinity There is in many places not as much hay to the acre as last year, but more ground has been cut over, so that the aggregate yield is much larger The vegetables on the low grounds of the Prickly Pear, were mostly destroyed by the grasshoppers but on the higher land suffered much less severely The reason for this difference was that the cold, damp ground retarded the growth of vegetation, and after the grasshoppers became large the tender sprouts were at their mercy The grasshoppers are gradually disappearing being assisted by small red lice, of the size of pin heads, that fasten upon them and destroy them in great quantities As many as twenty-five of these lice have been counted on one dead grasshopper They also attack potatoe worms and musquitoes to a limited extent

A NEW CUT-OFF ON THE PLAINS

A correspondent of the Fort Kearney Herald, writing from Fort Connor says: The great six hundred mile cut-off is now being shortened, so that Laramie will be brought within 400 miles of Virginia city, Montana, with a good natural road no mountains to cross, and new military posts to protect it in case of any renewal of hostilities

The following is from the Republican of the 18th

RICH QUARTZ DISCOVERIES

We hear of several rich quartz discoveries recently, among them that of a valuable free gold-bearing ledge, which was struck last week at the head of Greets gulch, a tributary of McClellan gulch It has been named the Steward Lode.' Last Sunday, a very rich lead, which has been called the "Glencoe," was discovered on Trout Creek, one and a quarter miles from Gaston & Simpson s mills The ledge is three feet in width, we are informed, and the specimens we have seen abound in free gold. The discovery was made by Henry Prosser and Charles Melvin who have since sold one th... and feet of it for ten thousand dollars

A STAMPEDE MANIA

These seem, at present, to be all the fashion To the Wind river, Mosquito Gulch and Salmon river excitements, we have to add a stampede, upon a large scale, from all the camps on the other side to some reported new discoveries in the vicinity of Flat Head Lake. There is a great stampede, but whether there is any gold at the end of it, remains to be seen

HELENA MARKETS

General business during the past week is duller than in any previous week this season Flour still declining The market for other commodities has manifested but little animation We note the following changes: St. Louis flour, $15@17; Salt Lake flour, $12 50@13 50, other brands $10 00@12 50, Blasting powder, per keg, $18 50 @19 00, Rifle Powder per keg, $18@19, Double tape fuse, 6½@7c; Cotton fuse, 3½@3c.

STAGES RUN OFF BY INDIANS

Thursday morning six of Huntley's horses were run off from Dearborn station by the Indians They have been replaced, and stages run tri weekly as usual

The following is from the Virginia City Post of Aug. 18:

MINING MATTERS.

Yesterday, while on a trip down Alder gulch, we took ... to visit some of our mining friends in the vicinity of Nevada City. Mr L. H. Lusk informed us that he had in his employ about twenty men, and was taking out, on an average, three hundred dollars per day Mr L says that he has recently taken out twelve hundred dollars, with the same number of hands now employed. ... Hodges & Co., who own the claim ... Mr Lusk s, took out, on last ...day, being the first clean-up they have made since opening their ground In this claim, from one pan of dirt, four dollars and fifty ... cents were obtained The California boys, who are working on the bar near Nevada, are not doing as well as they have done for some time past, though principally on account of having to run a great amount of top dirt through their sluices. McDermott, who has been compelled to suspend, on account of water, for the past week, commenced sluicing again on Thursday and from the way the dirt prospects, we judge Mac will realize some funds when he lifts his riffles for another clean-up.

Brown s Gulch, which has not heretofore been considered among the gold paying gulches of Montana, we learn from a gentleman just in from there, is now paying from fifteen to twenty dollars per day to the hand. Only a few men are, as yet, working on the gulch There is no doubt but that other gulches which have never been prospected in this vicinity, which will at least pay good wages when thoroughly tested

By reference to the County Recorder's books, we find, that certificates of twenty new quartz leads have been recorded during the past week—all of which are located in districts in the immediate vicinity of this place.

... PERSONAL ITEMS

Professor Dimsdale has so far recovered from his late illness as to enable him to once more assume the duties of the editorial department of the Post.

The Holladay Overland Mail and Express Line is now the only line plying between this place and Helena, all opposition having subsided

Colonel Sawyer arrived in town on Tuesday last, from across the Plains, The Colonel left Sioux City on or about the 7th of June, having ox teams heavily loaded, and made the trip in sixty days No trouble was experienced in crossing streams or on account of bad roads, loss of stock or molestation from Indians, although some few skirmishes took place, between some of his men and small bands of the "red man of the forest."

Letter from Astoria.

CUSTOM HOUSE, ASTORIA, Sept 4, 1866.

EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

As the Washington correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin has, in two letters dated respectively July 24th and July 31st, 1866, charged Collector Adams of Astoria, Oregon, with "Speculating in greenbacks with Government funds," and sums up the matter in the last named letter thus: "I cannot learn that any special defalcation is charged, and am inclined to think the sum involved is not large in amount. The Department, however, has required Mr Adams to settle certain amounts in gold which he expected to liquidate in greenbacks The high character for integrity which Mr. Adams has borne heretofore entitles him to a continuance of public confidence until proofs of delinquency are presented" And as Mr. Adams is now absent for a short time from the State, and cannot, of course, answer for himself the "rumors," as the correspondent calls it, therefore it may be proper for me to say, by way of slightly noticing the newspaper "charge," that it will be recollected, probably, that the said Bulletin was the "first person" to nose out and charge that the late Victor Smith was a defaulter in 1862 or 1863, and that afterwards the same Bulletin was the first person to make the discovery Also that Mr. Smith, on the authority of Commissioner Sargent, was, as I believe it turned out, not only no defaulter, but an incorruptible, and an uncommonly saving—even parsimonious—public officer

So, not unlikely, the same Bulletin may yet pronounce a similar eulogium upon the character of Collector Adams

I might properly stop here but I am tempted to add that Mr Bulletin, in Washington, has not scented out any transaction of the Collector here, in his official capacity whereby the Government could by any possibility lose a dollar, but rather, if he has found anything, it will prove to be that by which the Government will save a few dollars, not by speculations in greenbacks, either

Letter from Burnt River.

RAIDS AND ROBBERIES BY INDIANS

EXPRESS RANCH, Sept 1st, 1866

EDITOR OREGONIAN

Since my last in regard to the Indian depredations in this section of the country the last few days have been more prolific of depredations committed by the "red devils" than any at any previous time, although they have committed no murders since then One night last week a party of Indians went into the village of Clarksville, broke open a stable and succeeded in getting away with six head of horses, although a man was sleeping in the stable at the time He fired some shots at them, but without effect A short time after, two horses were taken from the California House, and night before last they broke open the stable at the above house and took two horses, but one got away and came back The next morning five men started in ... following the trail twelve miles, over a high ridge of mountain, the ground became so stony they could follow it no farther, and had to return

On Sunday last the expressman, on his way from Mormon Basin and Clarksville to Auburn, was fired on by three Indians, but it being after dark, and they only using arrows, he succeeded in getting away without damage

One week ago last night five head of horses were stolen near Glover's ferry on Snake river. Early next morning a party of nine men started in pursuit, and after following them a distance of one hundred miles, they were forced to return, for the want of provisions, without accomplishing anything

It appears that the programme of the Indians has been changed, and instead of making a raid on the settlements, once in three or four weeks, as formerly, they now return the next day, and for the last week, they have been seen, almost every day, off on the hills. Day before yesterday they were seen in a field owned by Mr Durkee of the Express Ranch, and in daylight at that. From all the moves the Indians are making, the inhabitants have become so apprehensive of danger, that the most if not all of them, that have families, are making preparation to send them below for safety, and some have already gone It is pretty well known that all the miners outside of the main camps, have quit work and come in, through fear of the Indians, and the general opinion is, that if there is not a sufficient military force sent against them soon, that there will be another Indian war, with all its barbarities and cruelties

Yesterday Col Hodges and Maj. Foster, on their way to Fort Vancouver, stopped here, and had quite a long talk with Mr Durkee, who took a great deal of pains to explain to them the geography of the country, and they both expressed the opinion that from what they could learn it was necessary that there should be at least one company stationed on Burnt River, and that they would use their influence with Gen. Steele for that purpose, and further, that in their opinion, as the post office for all this part of the country was at the Express Ranch, at or near it should be the headquarters of said company, and also from, its being the geographical centre of the principal raids of the red skins Those officers have the appearance of gentlemen and talk as though they wanted to do something for the country. ILLINOIS UNION CONVENTION.—Springfield Dispatch of August 8th gives the following

The Union State Convention of Illinois convened in the State Capitol at noon to-day, and elected a permanent organization. All the counties of the State were fully represented, and the Convention was composed of about seven hundred delegates, embracing some of the foremost soldiers and citizens of our State

After the transaction of some preliminary business, the Convention proceeded to the main business for which it was convened, viz the nomination of candidates for Congressmen at large for the State, a State Treasurer and State School-master.

Major General John A Logan was named in connection with the Congressional vacancy and was nominated by acclamation

General George W. Smith, of Chicago, was nominated unanimously for the office of State Treasurer, and Dr. Bateman was nominated for State Schoolmaster

The nominees were severally introduced to the Convention and acknowledged in fitting terms the high honor conferred upon them The speech of General Logan was a master-piece of oratory and argument.

Lyman Trumbull was subsequently introduced to the Convention, and spoke on the subject of reconstruction and the policy of Congress, as in contrast with that of the President, for the space of an hour, holding the Convention in perfect control

A series of sterling resolutions were adopted as the platform of the party in Illinois, and a large amount of other important business was transacted

The Congressional Convention of the Eighth district of this State also convened in this city today and nominated by acclamation the present able and worthy Representative, S. M. Cullom. The utmost harmony and enthusiasm prevailed in both Conventions The campaign has opened auspiciously in Illinois, and there is not a shadow of a doubt that the entire Republican State ticket will be elected by not less than 30,000 majority next November.

The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 6, 1866.

Vermont.

Vermont opens the fall elections auspiciously for the Union party. Of course there was no expectation that the Green Mountain State would do otherwise than give a large Union majority; but at this juncture it is extremely gratifying to find so large a gain on the majority of last year as the dispatches report. Last year Dillingham's majority was 16,729; this year it is estimated 5,000 greater. This is a sign that the purpose of the loyal North is not shaken by the treachery of the President. It is more than doubtful whether he can carry a single Northern State against the policy of Congress and the Constitutional Amendment.

Southern Testimony.

The following paragraphs are extracted from a late letter written to Congressman Kelley, of Philadelphia, by G. W. Gantt, of Arkansas:

> Every man who was South at or immediately after the surrender cannot fail to remember the real or assumed submissiveness of those leaders who had chained to carnage and pain the brave and bleeding masses of the Southern people for two long years after all hopes of success had departed. Pardon and permission to earn bread and secure shelter for their for their families, and to lead obscure and unobtrusive lives, was claimed to be the limit of their ambition. They then felt the true situation.
>
> But that time has gone by. The pardoned leaders are betraying the Government and misguiding the people. They are intolerant, supercilious and dictatorial. They are seized with a love for the Constitution that maddens them. Ben. Hill of Georgia, late a Confederate Senator, and now a delegate, I believe, to the Philadelphia Convention, who went out of the Union to fight for slavery and secession, and who being dragged back, proposes to renew the fight peacefully for what is left of both, said recently that he went out [illegible] Constitution, and that he had come back for the same purpose. And such sophistry is responded to and made to swell up on every breeze by all the "loyalers" from Georgia to the Penobscot.
> I tell you these men are as ready to deceive and bring to suffering the masses of the Southern people to-day as they ever were, if by so doing they can but advance themselves. They do nothing to conciliate—nothing to harmonize. They pander to every weakness and passion of the people and tear open every wound afresh that they may gain an ephemeral popularity. Instead of consoling they do all to dispirit and discourage. Instead of teaching our people to bury the past, they hold it up before them, clothed with magnified horrors. Of the present they speak despondingly and forebode nothing but evil for the future.

This is the testimony of a man of Southern birth, education and growth, who went into the rebellion and fought for Southern independence as long as there was a hope of achieving it, but who now has the manliness to "accept the situation" in good faith, and yield to the just and moderate demands of the loyal victors in the late struggle. The evidence he gives corroborates that of thousands both of the North and South, who have reported on the same subject. If men who talk about "conciliation" for those who were lately in arms against the Constitution and laws, were honestly desirous of restoring harmony, they would never counsel a policy which, instead of subduing the active enmity of the ex-rebels, only increases their arrogance and inflames their animosity to a still greater degree against all who opposed the Southern Confederacy. At the close of the war the rebels were entirely "conciliated." They considered that they had got their full share of the article, and respectfully declined the offer of any more. Under Johnson's management, they have been brought to believe themselves the injured party, and to demand concessions from the Northern people as a reparation for the "wrongs" that have been put upon them. They demand conciliatory treatment from the North, and yet do nothing themselves to restore harmonious intercourse. They ask the Northern people to "let bygones be bygones," and yet themselves refuse to bury the past and let the memories of the struggle sink into oblivion.

Did it never occur to those who talk of conciliating the South, that the North too needs conciliation? Did it never occur to them that the loyal people of this country are the class who have been wronged and who have therefore the right to demand reparation? When we are asked to "conciliate the South," we are requested to do that which would imply that rebels have been wronged by loyal men, and that it is the duty of the latter to atone in some suitable way for the injury they have done. The case lies the other way. The loyal North has been injured, and it is the duty of the rebellious South to repent and confess her sin.

Swamp Lands.

A few miles west of this city lie swamp lands of considerable extent, which are now being ditched and cleared preparatory to cultivation. These lands, when fully improved, will be of almost inestimable value. In their unimproved state they command from $100 to $200 per acre. The owners of these lands are showing a commendable enterprise in draining and otherwise preparing them for use. Labor expended in this way will obtain far better returns than that laid out in clearing some descriptions of our timbered lands, which, when opened, are comparatively unproductive. In many parts of the State there are extensive tracts of swamp lands of similar quality, whose productive capacity is scarcely to be estimated. The time is sure to come when the value of these tracts will be estimated far more highly than now. In some parts of the United States these peat swamps are held at enormous figures—it being expected that their chief value will be found in the fuel they will furnish. It is estimated that a bed of peat, ten feet deep, situated in New Jersey, will yield a profit of $20,000 per acre. Wood is too plenty here to admit of the use of peat for fuel, and perhaps will be so for years, or even for centuries to come. Still, there is even now a use to which peat may be applied here—we mean as fuel for the manufacture of iron. In a paper read before the London Society of Arts, it was stated that "peat if properly used gives a greater calorific power than coal. Iron manufacturers know that if they can get peat to stand the blast, it is infinitely superior to coal for their purpose. Iron can be produced by peat from the worst brands, which will almost equal that of the best Swedish or Russian manufacture." The peat of the swamps which lie near our iron beds, can be obtained at a cost far less than coal, and if it be of a proper quality for the purposes, may be used with advantage by our iron manufacturers. But whether there is any call for peat for these uses, or not, the swamps must be of great value to their owners for the purposes of cultivation.

The copperhead papers are spending most of their time and space in attempting to convince themselves that the Democratic party is not dead. So much effort simply shows the immense sum of doubt there is in the question.

STATE ITEMS.

The people of Lafayette are agitating the question of incorporating the town.

The Reporter says a new postal and stage route is to be established between Jacksonville and Ruby City, Owyhee; an order of the P. O. Department having issued to that effect.

A race between the horses "Stonewall" and "Jim Walker," over the Bybee track, Jackson county, Aug. 25th, for $100 a side was won by the former. On the 22d inst., the victor is to run a match race for $500 with "Fenian Chief"—a single dash of one mile.

The public schools of Oregon, of which there are as many in proportion to population as in any State of the Union, perhaps, are beginning to open their fall terms. The Portland academy opened last Monday, the 3d; Christian College at Monmouth, Polk county, will open on the 1st Monday of October; the Wallamett University will open on the 10th inst.

Dr. Benson has favored us with a copy of the "Minutes of the Oregon Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church," fourteenth session. From the report of the statistical secretary, we learn that the Conference embraces 34 circuits and stations, with a membership of 2,760, an increase over 1865 of 177. The local preachers number 67. There are 39 churches, and the church property is put down at the probable value of $61,500, a falling off from last year of $10,150. Of Sunday Schools, there are 73, with 530 officers and teachers and 3,154 pupils. The Sunday School libraries contain 14,735 volumes. The total allowances to preachers are $25,183; to Presiding Elders, $4,656 25. The Conference has under its jurisdiction five secular schools—the Wallamett University, Salem; the Portland Academy and Female Seminary; the Santiam Academy, Lebanon; the Umpqua Academy, Wilbur; and the Oregon City Seminary.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 5.

Meeting of the National Union Committee.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Pursuant to call issued from Washington, the following members of the National Republican Committee attended to-day: Gov. Marcus L. Ward, N. J.; Sam'l A. Purviance, Pa.; N. B. Smithers, Del.; H. W. Hoffman, Md.; Senator J. S. Fowler, Tenn.; J. D. Defrees, Ind.; B. C. Cook, Ill.; M. J. Eddings, Mich.; S. J. Judd, Wis.; S. B. Tubbs, Iowa; T. Simpson, Minn.; A. W. Campbell, West Va.; H. H. Starkweather, Conn.; B. R. Cowan, Ohio; A. B. Gardiner, Vt.; Gov. Edmonds, Dacotah; W. J. Cowing, Va. The Committee temporarily organized with Senator Fowler as Chairman, and unanimously adopted a resolution declaring H. J. Raymond, of New York, and George B. Senter, of Ohio, no longer members of the Committee, and N. S. Sperry, of Conn., no longer its Secretary, for their abandonment of the principles of the party, and their affiliation with its enemies. Gov. Ward was then chosen permanent Chairman vice Raymond.

The "Little Villain's" Fizzle at New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Under Raymond's call, the following members of the National Republican Committee attended at the Astor House to-day: H. J. Raymond, N. Y.; Wm. C. Claflin, Mass.; Thos. G. Turner, R. I.; J. B. Clark, N. H.; C. Bullitt, La.; and N. D. Sperry, Conn. Secretary Claflin suggested the impropriety of taking any action in the absence of so many members. Sperry said if the session was illegal on account of the want of quorum, all previous ones had been illegal for the same reason. At the last meeting there were only twelve members present. Raymond said he believed it would be best to adjourn to a fixed day. Sperry opposed this, and Raymond said he would retain custody of the papers until relieved of his position. Some of the members would probably meet at Philadelphia and take some action. It was finally agreed to adjourn to a day to be fixed by the Executive Committee.

Resignation of Hannibal Hamlin—His Position.

Hannibal Hamlin, Collector of the Port of Boston, tendered his resignation to the President, in a letter dated Aug. 28th, in which he says: "I do not fail to observe the movements and efforts which have been, and are now being made, to organize a party consisting of those engaged in the late rebellion and their allies who sought to cripple and embarrass the Government. These classes of persons, with small fractions of others, constitute the party. It proposes to overthrow the Union Republican party, and to restore to power, without guarantees for the future, men who have been disloyal—those who sought to destroy the Government. I gave all the influence [illegible] Republican party during the war, without the aid of which the Government would have been destroyed and the rebellion a success. With such a party as that now inaugurated I have no sympathy, and I therefore tender my resignation, to take effect from the time my successor shall be appointed and qualified."

The Southern Union Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The Southern Union Convention met at 10 o'clock. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Watlenck. The Committee on Credentials reported the number of delegates present as follows: Texas, 15; Louisiana, 18; Tennessee, 31; Virginia, 51; Georgia, 8; Alabama, 14; Kentucky, 18; Mississippi, 4; Missouri, 30; Arkansas, 2; North Carolina, 7; Maryland, 60; District of Columbia, 27. Total, 293. The Committee on Permanent Organization reported ex-Attorney General Speed, of Kentucky, as President, with a Vice President from each State. The names of President Speed and Vice Presidents Brownlow and John Minor Botts were read with much cheering. Speed, on taking the chair, spoke for half an hour in a most eloquent and forcible manner. He said it was the greatest honor of his life to preside over a convention assembled for such a grand work. We are here as representatives of a great truth. The ovation given us yesterday was not so much to us as individuals as to the great principles upon which we stand. We should remember this in our deliberations. We should be free and outspoken, but calm and merciful. He alluded to the conflict through which we had just passed, and said that the patriot soldiers were now staunch citizens. They do not want any more war, but they desire peace only on sure foundations of equal rights, equal privilege and equality for all men. [Loud cheers]. There can be no sure peace on any other foundation. He alluded to the late Convention in this city—the Johnson Convention—and said it did nothing but record an abject submission to the commands of the Executive of the United States. It bowed down and did joyfully what loyal citizens nobly refused to do. [Great cheering]. At the close of this address, Gen. Butler, Ben. Wade and Simon Cameron entered the room together and were received with loud cheering. One of the delegates moved that Gen. Geary be invited to take a seat on the platform, and he was conducted there, the whole house rising and cheering him in the most enthusiastic manner. Butler and Wade were afterwards invited to seats in the same place, and were also received with cheers. Considerable discussion sprung up on the question of appointing committees, and a few delegates wanted the resolutions referred without debate, but the proposition met with decided opposition, and was voted by a strong majority.

A committee of one from each State was appointed on resolutions, headed by Thos. J. Durant, of Louisiana, and including Governor Hamilton, of Texas, Governor Fletcher of Missouri, G. R. Breckinridge and others. A committee was appointed to prepare an address, headed by Geo. W. Pascal. A committee of the same number was appointed to prepare a statement of the condition in which the Union men are placed by the reconstruction policy of Johnson. Its chairman is Judge Warmouth of New Orleans.

Judge Bond, of Maryland, offered a resolution for reference to committee on platform, which closed with the expression of the opinion that the permanent safety of the Union men of the South cannot be secured without negro suffrage. It was received with loud and long continued applause by a large majority of the Convention, and with silence by some of the border State delegates. Several of these manifested great sensitiveness and wanted to kill the resolution, but the sense of the Convention was against them and the resolution was referred.

A committee of five, headed by Gov. Fletcher of Missouri, was appointed to receive the delegates from the North. A large number of other resolutions were sent to the committee on platform, after which the committee adjourned to meet to-morrow.

Gen. Grant and Admiral Farragut leave the Presidential "Party."

The announcement that General Grant and Farragut had withdrawn from the Presidential excursion party, was received with the greatest enthusiasm, which continued for several minutes.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Dispatches from Detroit this forenoon say Grant and Farragut are in that city, having left the Presidential party in Cleveland. They took the steamer last night and arrived in Detroit this forenoon.

The President at Cleveland.

The President made a speech from the balcony of the Kennard House, Cleveland, last night, during the delivery of which a remarkable scene took place. The crowd was evidently largely composed of radicals, who interrupted the President by hooting and shouting, and in one instance, by calling the President a traitor. The friends of the President in the crowd, replied to the numerous hisses with cheers and applause, and when he had finished his speech, he was saluted with loud and continued plaudits. The President arrived at Toledo, Ohio, at one o'clock this afternoon, and had a [illegible] welcome.

Vermont Election—Union Gains.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 4.—The annual election for Governor, Lieut. Governor, Treasurer and members of the Legislature, and also for members of Congress, took place to-day. The Republicans voted for Paul Dillingham, of Waterbury, for Governor, and the Democrats for Charles N. Davenport, of Whitingham. We have secured this evening returns from about thirty towns, comprising about one-eighth of the vote of the State. The vote stands thus far as follows: Dillingham, 5,149; Davenport, 1,895. The same towns last year gave Dillingham 4,660, and Davenport, 1,850. This vote indicates a gain to the Republican majority in the State over that of last year of about 5,000. The towns heard from on the Governor's vote all report Republican members of the Legislature but two. The Senate will as usual be Republican. In the 5th Congressional District, where a hard fight has been going on between rival Republican candidates for Congress, there is no choice as far as heard from. The two Republicans, Baxter and Hobart, are about even. In the other two districts, the Republican nominees are elected by handsome majorities.

The Schism in Union Committee.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The schism of the National Republican Committee continues to attract attention. It is understood that the chairman of the Committee has about $20,000 in his hands, which he proposes to surrender when relieved in a regular valid manner.

Foreign News.

A Paris letter writer says that the Empress Carlotta, having been successful in her visit to Napoleon, has been advised to visit the United States for the purpose of bringing her great diplomatic talent to bear at Washington.

The President at Detroit—How matters stand at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sep. 5.—The President arrived at Detroit last evening, where General Grant joined the party, which will be at Chicago this evening. The President and Secretary Seward have spoken at every station along the route from Washington except Oberlin, Ohio, and the sameness of the President's in everywhere confiding the Constitution, Union and flag to the keeping of the assembled people renders the omission to do so at Oberlin more noticeable. At several points along the route between Cleveland and Detroit yesterday there was marked dissatisfaction that General Grant was not present, and pretty strong murmurs of disapproval of the President. Gen Oglesby declines to attend the Chicago celebration, saying in a speech at Springfield yesterday, that he could not meet and welcome a man who had prostituted a pilgrimage to the tomb of Douglas into a tour for most selfish and unscrupulous ends. He would never welcome Mr. Johnson to Chicago, Springfield, or any other place in the State. Gov Morton also announces that he will not welcome the President at Indianapolis because the President has accepted the invitation of the Democratic State Central Committee who will make the visit a purely partisan affair. This course of Oglesby and Morton finds further justification because at Albany and various places in New York Seward had spoken contemptuously of Gov. Fenton's welcome to the President which was addressed to him as Chief Magistrate and not a patriotic, faithful Executive of the nation. Every effort has been made at Chicago to divest the reception of the Douglas monument ceremonies of any partizan character, but in view of the speeches and demonstrations all along the route, the committee here considered themselves sold. The board of trade having originally tendered their hall, have been largely inclined to revoke the offer, and have held some exciting meetings on the subject, but wiser counsels have prevailed. It seems probable, however, if the President and Mr. Seward use the hall for a political harangue, the board will afterwards adopt resolutions plainly telling what they think about it.

Michigan Democratic State Convention.

DETROIT, September 5.—The Michigan Democratic Convention yesterday nominated General A. S. Williams for Governor, General J. G. Parkhurst for Lieut. Governor, and adopted resolutions endorsing the Philadelphia platform.

George Trussell, the noted Chicago gambler and part owner of the horse Dexter, now here, was shot and killed in a drinking saloon, last night, by his mistress.

NEWS BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Sept. 3, evening.—Consols closed at 87¼ for money; 5-20's, 73¼.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The following dispatch was received to-day and is believed to be the first instance in which a dispatch has been sent from mid-ocean to Europe and thence to America on the same day: On board steamship Great Eastern, Atlantic Ocean, Sept. 4.—To D. H. Craig, General Agent of the Associated Press, New York: Just received telegrams from London, saying there is a serious outbreak in Canada. Please advise me accurately by cable via Heart's Content and Valentia in regard to the same. We expect to arrive at Heart's Content on Saturday next. All is going well. CYRUS W. FIELD.

LONDON, Sept. 4, noon.—Consols are held at 89½ for money; 5-20's, 73¼.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 4, noon.—Cotton opens dull; sales estimated for the day at 6,000 bales.

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—Count Bismarck has refused to receive a deputation from North Schleswig who desired to present a petition for restoration of their Government to Denmark. The armistice between Saxony and Prussia has expired by limitation. Peace is yet unsettled between these two countries, and hostilities may possibly occur. The Prussian Chamber of Deputies passed the Government indemnity bill by a large majority.

SILVER SHEEN.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 89 First Street, have succeeded in producing a PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURE combining all those beautiful shades and effects which render them so superior to all others. The fact that this firm is now filling orders for pictures from San Francisco and all parts of this State and adjoining Territories tells the story. The kind of work executed at this GALLERY commends itself to all.

Saturday Afternoon,

Performance to commence at 2 o'clock, for the benefit of Ladies and Families.

MESSRS. LEE & RYLAND HAVE MUCH PLEASure in announcing that they have secured (by permission of T. Maguire, Esq.) the services of

HARRY JACKSON!

The Celebrated Clown and Mimic, who will appear as

Shakesperian Clown and Jester,

And give his wonderful imitations, also impersonations of the DWARF FRENCH LADY, Trumpet Solos, etc.

The press has pronounced him a fellow of infinite jest and excellency. A hit; a palpable hit.

"Harry Jackson makes an excellent Clown, being witty without vulgarity, and clever in the general acceptance of the term."—Sac. Bee.

"A new feature in the entertainments was the appearance of Harry Jackson, the Comedian, as Clown. We award Jackson the credit of being an unusually fresh Jester, with a good stock of stories, witticisms, apt quotations and practical jokes. His imitations of Bandman, Kean and Forrest were close and amusing, acknowledged by the public to be the most successful son of Momus since the days of the far-famed Waller."—Sac. Union.

THE PAVILLION is entirely New, fitted up with all the Modern Improvements of a FIRST-CLASS CIRCUS.

ADMISSION.......$1 CHILDREN, HALF-PRICE.

MEETING OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.—The regular weekly meeting of the Common Council was held last evening at 8 o'clock, Major Failing in the chair

The following members were present: Messrs Bennett, Carson, Carter Hallock Lounsdale McCraken, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Zieber—a full Board

The records of the previous meeting were read and approved

Foreman Perry of Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company submitted a communication from Wm Baker of Vancouver, asking the cost of the aparatus recently used by that company with a view of purchasing the same Mr Perry stated the subject to the Board and during the session an ordinance, offered by Mr Hallock, authorizing the sale of the apparatus for the sum of $225, was passed under a suspension of the rules

Leave of absence during the approaching session of the State Assembly, was granted Councilman Rosenheim

P Kelly proprietor of a saloon on Front street, and John Donavan proprietor of a saloon on Alder street, petitioned for abatement of the city licenses for the current quarter in consequence of the losses sustained in their pursuits on account of streets blockaded by building materials. The matter of the first was referred to the judiciary committee and that of the latter to the committee on ways and means

The committee on fire and water and the Chief Engineer were instructed to connect the street main with the new fire cistern, at the intersection of Front and Salmon streets

The report of the City Recorder for the month ending August 31, was read, showing receipts from fines etc, to the amount $150 60; fees of the Recorder, $203 00 and City Marshal, $117 00 The report was accepted and placed on file and warrants authorized for the fees as expressed.

Superintendent Walker of the river improvement reported progress of work with the snag puller, for the week ending on Saturday last, and the condition of work on board the dredger He reports 16 feet of water now in the channel, where two weeks since there was no more than that, and the water has receded in the meantime three feet; this mainly in consequence of work performed by the snag puller The dredger will be in operation the present week, according to the report, which was placed on file.

The river navigation improvements committee reported in respect to the loan authorized that for three weeks they had advertised for proposals for $10 000, but none were received. They asked the privilege to prepare bonds, to be offered in other markets where the money may be obtained.

[illegible] motion to adopt the report, Mr McCraken stated that contracts for machinery etc. were about [illegible] that as the work progressed bills would be [illegible] and expenses accruing with no funds to meet [illegible]. It had been expected by the committee that they would have no difficulty in effecting the loan as proposed, but none seemed to come forward and take the offer and it was thought best to issue bonds, as by this [illegible] the loan associations and insurance companies of [illegible] could be induced to take them at a fair rate [illegible] No. 330, authorizing the loan was read, providing for its payment in five years from May 1866, at 12 [illegible] interest, payable semi-annually

The report of the committee was adopted and the bonds authorized.

In compliance with a resolution of the Council, Surveyor Burrage submitted a report, and diagram of grades in streets west of Park street between Couch's addition and the addition on the south, and also of Fourth street between Hall street and Caruthers' addition, which were referred to the committee on streets and public property

Warrants were authorized in liquidation of claims against the city as follows: Portland Water Company [illegible] for fire hydrant, erected in 1864, at the corner of First and Washington streets; Portland Water Company, [illegible] for supply of water furnished during August, 1866 [illegible] Gas Light Co, $221 for gas furnished 34 street lamps for the month of August, 1866, lighting and turning off the same, $30; gas for Council-room, same time [illegible] total, $284 30 R. Pittock, $30, rent of house for engine [illegible] No. 4, H L Hoyt, $64, for 32 dogs killed; Edwards & Joynt, $10 87 tin on dredger To sundry persons according to pay roll of Supt. Walker, on the river improvement fund $838 82; H L Hoyt, board of [illegible] during August 1866, $117; S Simmons, J S White and others witness fees, in the case of the city [illegible] $9 50; C. W Burrage $220, [illegible] B. C. Simpson $117 D D Clark $10, and G F [illegible] $56, services as assistants in surveying J [illegible]; J. H. Perry & Co. $175, and S Ritchey [illegible] for gravel applied to the plaza improvements.

A bill of [illegible] & Stilwell approved by [illegible] Bulger [illegible] city dredger for lumber to the amount of [illegible]

[illegible] of C. H. Myers for five pounds lead pipe $1, [illegible] $2 50; work of plumber $2, and carpenter's charge $10, incurred at the house of company No. 2, was referred to the fire and water committee.

[illegible] of C. H Myers for an iron lamp post, and [illegible] the same with the street main, at the corner of [illegible] Taylor streets, amounting to $15 30, approved by the street commissioner, was allowed, and ordered paid.

Mr. Hallock, pending the motion to draw a warrant, said that he would vote to pay the bill, and gave notice that he would offer a resolution authorizing the street [illegible] to institute a suit in Recorder's Court for [illegible] against the person responsible for the same, as [illegible] had been demolished by a runaway horse, and as [illegible] private property without being held [illegible] they should not be permitted to [illegible] property of the city.

The [illegible] was subsequently offered and adopted [illegible] to repeal ordinance No 334, entitled an [illegible] ordinance No. 170, imposing and [illegible] was read a third time and [illegible] final reading

Mr [illegible] arose to a question of privilege and said that he should vote against the repeal of the ordinance as [illegible] If any person would show to him any [illegible] to be derived by the city from the repeal, he [illegible] to vote for it. Or, if it could be [illegible] the repeal would not work an injury to the [illegible] he might vote for it.

[illegible] stated that the reason he should vote for [illegible] was, that as the law at present existed, it was [illegible] it was in direct violation [illegible] article of section 38, chapter 5 of the Charter, [illegible] that for the punishment of a violation of [illegible] of the city, the penalty shall not exceed [illegible] clear to him that this ordinance contemplated [illegible] of the Council, by [illegible] and fixing a [illegible] $500, for keeping a disorderly house, as [illegible] by the bond He was not an advocate of the [illegible] cause, but when he deemed the constitu[illegible] of a question wrong he should vote in the negative. He thought such places, as it was intended this [illegible] reach, could be restrained without over[illegible] the charter He would not say that he would [illegible] restraining but he would vote for the repeal [illegible] in question.

Mr McCraken thought that in case there were any [illegible] in the ordinance which conflicted with the charter, it would be well to refer the same to the Judiciary [illegible]

[illegible] submit the matter to the Judiciary Committee, the question was lost, by a vote of [illegible] The ord[illegible] was then [illegible] upon its final passage, and [illegible] by ayes Bennett, Carter Hallock O'Connor, [illegible] and Zieber—6, Nays, Carson, [illegible] McCraken—3.

Warrant was [illegible] in favor of H Cason, for the [illegible] balance on account for the construction of cisterns.

The City Surveyor was authorized to estimate the [illegible] of the B street improvements and the Front street [illegible] as specified by notice published.

On motion of Mr. [illegible] the Council proceeded to an election for Street Commissioner which resulted in the election of W W Davis, on the third ballot

On motion of Mr Hallock the Council proceeded to an [illegible] the City Surveyor, after the third ballot which stood O. W. Burrage 4, George H. Belden 4, blank 1, [illegible] was lost.

A street lamp, [illegible] by Mr T J Holmes, on the corner of [illegible] and Third streets, was on motion included [illegible] city charge.

[illegible] was then resumed; but no change in the vote having been effected, after the fifth ballot the [illegible] adjourned.

LOST [illegible]—Another dray horse was disposed of [illegible] at the foot of Stark street taking with him [illegible] dray and all. It was the property of Messrs [illegible] & Porter, and was used by an employee [illegible] The horse had been driven into the [illegible] with the dray, for the purpose of filling a cask with water and the wheels of the vehicle getting past the [illegible] bank, of course sunk the weight taking the horse down with it, to the depth of at [illegible] A strong under-current sets in at that [illegible] and all efforts to fish the dray out were failures [illegible] that a horse or two is lost every [illegible] at the foot of Stark street, when the water is [illegible] on the other hand it is surprising that more accidents of this kind do not occur Parties are seen daily, [illegible] every hour in the day, driving into the water [illegible] when they must know that by a [illegible] slip of their animals they are almost sure to lose them over the Wall of the river bed, where in the [illegible] feet wide the depth is from "knee deep" to [illegible] sixty or eighty feet

WATER [illegible]—The steam fire engine of Multnomah [illegible] No 2, was set to work on Tuesday evening to fill the [illegible] cistern, at the intersection of Fourth and [illegible] streets. She took suction at the cistern corner of [illegible] streets, and through a line of 850 feet of hose filled the [illegible] in fifty minutes. The cistern holds [illegible] gallons of water After the cistern was full a pipe was [illegible] the hose, and with the steam going down a stream one hundred feet in extent was thrown over surrounding [illegible] This may be deemed a pretty good exploit, but the friends of Multnomah claim that she can do [illegible] than that.

[illegible] RAT TRAP —During the procession on Monday it was [illegible] by many in line that the streets [illegible] were almost a stench in consequence of the great number of dead rats. We learn that the presence of so many of the vermin, dead, was on account of the introduction of a new improved rat trap in the city, which [illegible] the rats in against their will sets itself and turns on again like clock work. The trap will no doubt [illegible] to the city but we hope to see the dead conveyed to some other locality than the streets.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—The sale of real estate by Mr [illegible] yesterday, was very well attended. The [illegible] brought about its value The north half of lot 7, block 70 with a story-and-a-half residence upon it, sold to Mr Peter Taylor for the sum of $1 450 Lots 4 and 5, with improvements, on block 205, sold to Messrs Ferry & Foster for $2,300 Dr J A Chapman [illegible] lots 3 and 6 on the same block at $630 each

[illegible]—James Murphy S D Vance and John Ed[illegible] were under arrest, for examination before Judge [illegible] to-day, on a charge of drunken and disorderly [illegible] by fighting at the Merchant's Exchange Vance was fined $5 and costs, upon conviction before Judge H [illegible] on a similar charge, which occurred on Monday [illegible] He paid the fine and will enter the arena again to-day

THE NEW DREDGER —It is thought that the new dredger will be ready to make her first trial sometime during to-day. The ground selected by Mr Walker is on the opposite side of the river Just above the ship yard of Mr Clinton.

FROM GRAY'S BAY —The schooner [illegible], Capt. G Hanson, was yesterday discharging cargo from Gray's Bay She is advertised to sail for that locality on or about the 10th.

VIOLATING BONDS —The first case under Ordinance No 34 regulating the retail liquor trade, which requires bonds from the dealer to keep an orderly house will be tried to day before Judge Hoffman Charles Joachin the accused is under arrest for having violated his bonds, by keeping a disorderly house on Taylor street, opposite the M E. Church

EXPORTS INSTEAD OF IMPORTS —The big load of merchandise mentioned in yesterday's OREGONIAN as having been drawn by one of B[illegible] & Co's teams was for shipment to the upper country [illegible] instead of having just arrived It [illegible] sufficient to start a young [illegible] enterprise [illegible]

PANORAMA —By request Mr [illegible] exhibited his "Paradise Lost" at Oro Fino Hall last evening He will also exhibit the War panoramas and dioramic views, at the same Hall on Friday evening, Saturday evening, and Saturday afternoon See advertisement

ANOTHER MATCH GAME.—The Pioneer Base Ball Club propose playing another match game on Friday The sides chosen will be captained by Edw Barstow and W K Witherel

The dispatches say it is noticeable that the farther west Johnson goes the more coldly he and Seward are received It seems Johnson is never to be done encountering "perils" He is now entering upon the "peril" of learning that the parasites, sycophants and bread and butter dependents who surround him at Washington do not reflect the sentiments of the loyal West

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions the sale of which daily increases The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here and in the markets of the interior a relatively higher price excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice

Ascent of Mount Hood.

Portland, September 4, 1866.

Editor of the Oregonian:

As several persons have expressed a wish for a minute account of our late trip to Mt. Hood, I will give the notes that I kept as briefly as possible. The party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ross, Mrs. Capt. Metzgar, Messrs. Wood, Deardorff, Whitehead, Higgins, Clark, Harvey, jr., and Atkinson, sen. and jr., left Portland, August 15th, five in a double wagon, with provisions, tents, blankets, &c., and five on horseback. Six miles from Milwaukie, at the house of Mr. D.'s parents, who joined the party, we had a choice dinner of venison and berries, direct from the mountains, with other good things well known to thrifty farmers. Our first camp was at Cedar creek, near Revnew's, 28 or 30 miles from Portland. Trout are said to abound in this clear stream; not doubting the statement, we were off too early in the morning to test it. Our second camp was at Elk Prairie, on the Sandy river, about 20 miles farther. Trout were caught and berries gathered, but the hunters found no game. Another party ahead, while fishing, saw a bear, which trotted off to safer quarters before the guns could be brought to bear. Our third halt was at Government Camp, 20 miles further, so named by or for the 1st Rifle Regiment, who stopped there in 1849 while en route for the Dalles. The traveling on the second and third days was difficult for a wagon, especially up the Laurel Hill. Our permanent camp was made at this third station, the summit of Mt. Hood bearing north-north-east about ten miles off. Twice a day our table, made of boxes, was abundantly supplied with a good variety of food, by the care and skill of the ladies. Cooking by camp-fires and sleeping under a blanket with face out to the sky, making constant choice between clouds of mosquitoes or clouds of smoke, are familiar experiences to Oregonians.

On Saturday the 18th several parties were out, searching the best route to the summit. Prof. [illegible] with one company. Along [illegible] species. The thermometer at our camp stood at 50° at 6 o'clock A. M. The clear stream near by, eight or ten miles from its source under the snows of the mountain, chilled the mercury down to 42°. The boiling point, on careful trial, was found to be at 204°. Giving the hight of the camp according to the usual rule of 550 feet for every degree of depression—four thousand four hundred feet.

One of our Aneroid barometers stood at 26°05. At Portland, on the morning of the 15th, it stood at 29°902. We could not of course know what variation might be indicated at Portland that morning. The scale on the other barometer extended only half round the dial, but the range seemed equivalent. Not having the Smithsonian tables at hand, one of the rules for barometrical measurements was applied and the height found to be 2,624 feet. This discrepancy of nearly 800 feet we could not understand.

During Saturday the boiling point was tested with the Fahrenheit thermometer, near the highest tree, a small pine, about five miles up the mountain from camp, and found to be 195°, or 17° below the boiling point at the sea level, giving the height nine thousand three hundred and fifty feet, (9,350). One small pine stood above us perhaps fifty feet, making the height of trees 9,400 feet. The barometer brought up to this point on Monday morning, the 20th, sprung back to 23°975, but wavered. Applying the before-mentioned rule for barometrical measurements, viz:—"that the sum of the two columns is to their difference as 52,000 is to the answer," gives nearly six thousand feet for the height. This discrepancy of 4,000 feet was still more confusing.

We reached this elevation after three hours hard climbing, mostly up a single ridge in direct line from our camp toward the summit. We estimated the distance passed to be five miles. We saw masses of snow in the ravines for two miles below. Here the view becomes indescribably grand. The sharp summit above us, over the fields of snow and of rocks, seemed to be near and easy of ascent, but looking down over all the forests through which we had come, and far beyond upon the numberless lofty ridges of the Cascades, covered to their tops with dark woods, which seemed like billows of the ocean, caught and held in fixed forms amid wildest storms, we began to feel the immensity of the mountain on which we stood. It was an involuntary feeling to ask, what storm lifted it up to be the monarch of the whole range? What fiat of the Creator fixed it there upon its unmeasured foundation? Only one peak, Mt. Jefferson, 70 or 80 miles to the south-east, lifted above the surrounding heights, held any comparison to Mt. Hood, and yet, though snow-capped, it appeared to be lower and smaller.

From our position at the tree line it was easy to see the course of several streams, each having cut its own ravine down the mountain side, leaving ridges between, all growing narrower and sharper, and converging in the snow fields far above us.

At 5 P. M. we started down the mountain and reached camp at 6 o'clock—the last company in. Comparing notes about the routes, all parties had concluded to ascend the ridge direct from camp. All had done something to blaze the trail. It was found to be the same that Mr. Deardorff and others followed and blazed eight years ago.

Sabbath, the 19th, was observed as a day of rest and religious services. One of the company gave a discourse upon one of the mountain journeys of our Savior in northern Palestine, which, with prayers, singing and our family worship, a service daily observed—made the day as profitable, perhaps, as it would have been in our accustomed sanctuaries at home. Our company at meeting was increased from Mr. Bead's camp near by.

At precisely 3 o'clock A. M., on Monday, the 20th, according to programme, we were out of our blankets, some lighting the camp-fires, others feeding the horses, and others preparing warm breakfast with abundant warm coffee, the best stimulant for such a trip. Our usual worship over, by the first dawn through the forest at 4½ o'clock we were on the trail. Prof. Wood with his customary outfit, the herbarium; Dr. W., with his Aneroid, thermometer and hygrometer, the writer with barometer, thermometer, spirit lamp, phial of alcohol, box of matches, cup, and a few of the invaluable ship biscuit. Others had provisions for lunch, a hatchet, rope and staves. About four miles up the mountain, our five horses were staked out at 6½ o'clock on a fine prairie of bunch-grass. An hour more of steady climbing brought us to the upper limit of trees measured on Saturday. After an hour more, at 8½ o'clock, we reached the upper limit of vegetation at the lower edge of the vast snow-fields.

While we boiled water for coffee over a fire of dry bits of pine, brought up a mile, we tested the boiling point, and found it 192°, giving a height of eleven thousand feet. We found under the edge of a rock a little bunch of grass with a few dry and one green blade, also a bit of moss. The thermometer at 8 o'clock stood at 40°. The barometer was unchanged from 23°,975, indicating that it had reached the limit of its power. After lunch, at 9 o'clock A. M., we began to climb the steep snow-fields. The Cascades began to look like a series of hills of the same general elevation, indented by dark ravines with here and there a speck of green prairie. For two hours more we toiled upward, now over vast snow-fields, and now clambering over declivities of loose rock and sand, which for ages have been falling from the cliffs above. We found masses of light volcanic scoria, some of them seamed with sulphur. Here and there were dark gray rocks, like boulders, weighing many tons, cracked and shivered from circumference to center, as if by sudden cooling from great heat.

On our right was an immense glacier of snow and blue ice, apparently furrowing its way down one of the deep gorges of the mountain. The stream that trickles from the snows of this glacier forms the head of the Sandy and Deschutes, which the eye can trace by its rocky bed for twenty or thirty miles until hid among the hills. Overhanging our path on the left is a steep precipitous cliff from which slender pinnacles of rock point upward like figures, while from its sides masses of rock annually fall.

At eleven o'clock, on a snow field, we met a party of young men from Portland, who had camped in the woods on the mountain the night before and had thus four hours advance of us. They were returning from the summit which they had reached with great difficulty. They kindly loaned us their pikes, which we found almost essential to our ascent.

An hour and a half more over rocks and snow, often so steep that we were obliged to use hands as well as feet, brought us to the edge of the crater, from which we had occasionally seen clouds of smoke ascending, borne over the summit by the strong upward current of air that blew up the gorge we were climbing. When there was a lull, we were almost sickened by the strong sulphurous fumes from the crater. Along what seemed to be its southern edge the snow fields exhibited fissures as if settling by heat and melting underneath. It becoming dangerous to walk alone, lest one should fall through and be lost, the rope was tied around the foremost and hindmost and stretched for a hundred feet or more, all others grasping it at regular intervals. The snow was thawing on the surface and slumpy. Thus we made a kind of circuit over what appeared to have been the ancient bed of the crater but now filled with snow of unknown depth, except one opening on the southwest edge above the steep cliff before named. From that mouth of the crater, the sides of which are now a column of steam or smoke is continually issuing and rolling away with the wind. I observed that from the two ravines on either side of that cliff, two streams issue which the eye can trace fifteen miles or more southwest, forming the Sandy. Possibly the milky whiteness of that river in summer is owing to the vast quantities of light friable scoriacious sand which it washes down beneath the snow, from that open edge of the crater.

About ten o'clock A. M. we were at the great crevasse from five to thirty or forty feet wide and of unknown depth, about seven hundred feet below the summit. Whether to attempt crossing and how, were the questions we all felt if we did not ask them? Above us was a steep ascent—as some estimated of 55° or 60°—overhung on the left by a precipice from which rock and snow were frequently falling and ploughing their way down hundreds of feet. Below us the snow fields seemed to occupy the whole compass of distinct vision while the forests and mountains on our morning route grew hazy. It was bewildering to look back over our own path, and some began to grow dizzy and faint. A bit of cracker and snow reduced the swelling of the lips which I felt and restored strength. The breath was short and respiration somewhat difficult. Yet we determined with steady nerve to try the crevasse. Sticking our pikes into the opposite snow bank, one of the lightest lads, with rope around his body, was lifted up. After climbing up forty or fifty feet, the pike was driven deep in the snow and the rope fastened to it. With the help of rope and pike all drew themselves up. The rope was then carried up a hundred feet more and fastened, and in single file with its help we crawled and pulled ourselves up. This process of carrying up the rope was repeated seven times by Mr. Deardorff, our pilot and one of the lads. It was a perilous ascent. A single slip or misstep would have hurled us down hundreds of feet. The fall of a rock from the precipice over our heads would probably have been fatal to some one.

At a quarter past two o'clock P. M. we reached the summit, and what a summit! Where we stood was a mere point or ledge of snow and cliff, over which a fall would hurl one down thousands [illegible]

We could not stand and gaze, but we lay down and looked off, as a person from the roof of a very high building! The top of the Cascades appeared to be a level of dark forests out of which to the north were three mountains—St. Helens, Adams and Rainier—covered with snow, like vast inverted bowls. We had glimpses of the Columbia, the bare spot at the Dalles, the high plains beyond the Des Chutes and John Day's rivers, and the Blue mountains. On the south and west the smoke hid the valleys and revealed only the dim outline of the coast range. But Mt. Hood seemed to stand alone, the highest, mightiest, grandest monarch of all within the picture—the source of rivers and the vast treasure house of rock and crude materials of which to form hills, plains and valleys below! The chill wind howling up the gorges, and the falling rocks from a distant cliff with noise like thunder, added to the impressive sublimity of the scene! Standing on that dizzy height man appears only as a mote, that may be whisped away and lost forever. God, the builder of mountains, alone is great! A few rods along the sharp summit at the left and right were two points perhaps fifteen feet higher than our position. We saw the tracks of the morning party leading up one of them, and also a heap of stones, used as a place for the deposit of mementoes.

But, wishing most of all to get the height, we stepped down a few feet to a point of rocks, and then after a half hour's patient protecting the lamp from the wind, we melted snow and boiled the water. The thermometer was held in it and the mercury stood at 180° as the water boiled—making the height 17,600 feet. The Barometer stood at about 22°, nearly the same spot as it did four or five miles below. This showed that its chain or spring was not adapted to measure such vast elevations.

We left some mementoes among the rocks, and at 3 o'clock began to descend slowly in single file, each treading in the foremost's steps. We leaped the crevasse, passed the crater, moved carefully down the fields of snow and rock near the middle precipice, until a more gradual slope permitted us to slide along alone. On the edge of the crevasse when returning we kneeled on the snow and returned thanks to God for our success and safety in the excursion.

Prof. Wood supposes, and with many marks of probability, that the crater originally occupied the top of the mountain; that the south wall except one cliff, has been broken down, while its north limit is the present summit; and that this vast crater is filled with snow and ice of unknown depth, except the small opening, which is still an active volcano. The mountain seems to be rapidly wearing and tumbling down. It was once perhaps one or two thousand feet higher than it is at present. The measureless fields of rock and stone indicates this.

Prof. W. enriched his herbarium with thirty or more Alpine species of plants, many of which he supposes to be new to the scientific world.

Dr. Whitehead noted that the index of his Aneroid Barometer turned completely around the dial and one inch more, although he did not ascend above the crevasse. Yet this depression was evidently too little. We learned not to rely upon Aneroid's for great heights, and I have since been told that they failed to give the correct height of Mt Shasta.

The Barometer stood at the crevasse	20°31
The Thermometer	47°
The Hygrometer	38°

In three hours and a half from the summit we were all back in camp, wearied yet grateful for the success and safety of our excursion. The next morning early, we left our camp for home, which we easily reached in three days, and those on horseback in two. Yours, respectfully.

G. H. ATKINSON.

The President's Responsibility.

If any doubt existed as to President Johnson's connection with the massacre at New Orleans, it will be removed by reading his dispatch to Attorney-General Herron of Louisiana. This dispatch written with the knowledge that loyal citizens of the United States were dying from wounds received by a rebel mob, assumes the full responsibility of the deed. The policy that prompted Mayor Monroe and his followers found its inspiration in Washington.

This conclusion fills us with inexpressible sadness, but we cannot resist the facts. It is a dreadful thing to arraign the President of the United States as being in any possible sympathy with the unlawful shedders of blood, but when a plain fact is to be stated the plainest words are the best. In the first place the President recognizes a usurped power to communicate his wishes. James M. Wells is the Governor of Louisiana, and the official representative of the State. To him the President should have spoken. But Gov. Wells, a duly elected governor by rebel votes, had called this Convention together and the President steps over the theory of State Rights, and sends his commands to an officer of his Cabinet—his Attorney-General—one Andrew S. Herron—a conspicuous rebel in the days of treason. The President directs him to call upon General Sheridan for "sufficient force to sustain the civil authorities in suppressing all illegal or unlawful assemblies." If the President really believed that States have rights, and Governors of States privileges, then his course in recognizing an officer of Gov. Wells' Cabinet as the proper authority to call out troops is a usurpation. What would have been said if Congress had requested Attorney-General Speed to call out the troops and perform the highest executive functions. Yet Mr. Speed had as much right to call out the troops of the United States as Mr. Herron has to take command of the troops in Louisiana.

This is a small point in our argument, but it shows the tendency of the President. His dispatch recognizes a usurpation, and proceeds to defend the massacre. All "unlawful assemblies" must be suppressed. Well, this particular assembly was suppressed—and very effectually—for its leaders were murdered, and those who escaped murder are either lying in the prison or hospital. According to the President, this Convention had not "obtained the consent of the people of the State." If it at all entered into our argument we might ask him what right had the President to determine this fact? Gov. Wells thought the Convention was legal and as he is Governor, what business has President Johnson with it? Who gives the President of the United States the power to traverse the decision of a State Executive, or to decide upon the competency of a State Convention? Would he be authorized in sending a dispatch to General Barlow, declaring the New York Legislature to be unlawful, and calling upon Gen. Hooker to disperse its members? According to the President's own theory—the theory that Louisiana is a sovereign State and her officers competent to govern it—he is guilty of a most flagrant assumption of executive power.

We pass beyond this theory, or indeed, any theory of Presidential prerogative. The facts are that certain Union men—conspicuous for their loyalty during years of war—have been murdered by rebels, who were conspicuous for treason in years of war. The men who did the deed are enabled to show warrant for their crime from the President of the United States. When Gov. Brownlow asked for troops to compel the obedience of Executive commands, and to protect the Legislature in its legislative power, he was petulantly refused. In Tennessee the majority was loyal, and the President threw his influence with the minority. In Louisiana the majority was rebel, and the President not only sustained it, but placed in its hands the army of the United States. If it was right to refuse aid to Brownlow in seeing that "the law and the Constitution were sustained, and thereby peace and order," then it was wrong to refuse aid to Gov. Wells and his Convention. If that Convention was unlawful, there were remedies in the Supreme Court. We have had a dozen Fenian Conventions in the last year—all unlawful—as organizing war upon a friendly power. The President permitted them to assemble, and sent no troops to disperse them. Why make an exception of loyal men in Louisiana, who at the very word, and accepting as truth the charges of the President, were no more illegal than the Senate of the Fenian Brotherhood.

It is folly to use soft phrases in speaking of this appalling crime. The policy of Andrew Johnson engendered the demon fury which has shed blood in the streets of the Crescent City. His statesmanship has once more raised rebel flags in New Orleans. His construction of Presidential duty had led him to commit an act of direct usurpation in Louisiana. His oath to protect and defend the nation finds expression in the unavenged assassination of men whose loyalty was as conspicuous and self-denying and sorely tried as his own. All that we have gained by the war comes to this: that in Louisiana an illustrious General of the Union army is compelled to accept the orders of a notorious punished rebel. The time has come for the people to speak—and let it be in tones so distinct and unmistakable that even Andrew Johnson will not dare to disobey the warning.—New York Tribune.
